Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this training, participants will be able to:

- ❖ Recognize the nature of conflict and its benefits.
- ❖ Explore collaboration as an effective approach to conflict and change management.
- ❖ Identify basic components of healthy relationships.
- ❖ Gain knowledge of the role of the mediator and techniques for reframing conflicts around interests.

Presenter:

Steve Sewell graduated from Biola University and has completed training in theology, leadership development, pastoral care studies, and thanatology. His encouraging and empowering conflict reconciliation presentation has been welcomed in many settings, including healthcare, faith-based organizations, and corporations. Steve is a regular contributor to the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce and is the current Missouri Hospice and Palliative Care Association Chaplain Committee Team Leader where he leads an annual Chaplain Training series. His book, At a Loss: Learning How to Comfort Others, was published in 2015. Steve has made it his mission to encourage leadership and strengthen teams during times of change, adversity, and loss. He is originally from California and currently resides in Northwest Missouri. For more information and to read his blogs/articles, etc. visit www.stevensewell.me

Who Should Attend:

This Conference brings together palliative and end-of-life care professionals, educators, students, members of professional organizations, and individuals interested in improving end-of-life care.
